FROM QUARANTINE WHARF.

THE INTERESTING DIARY OF GEORGE WASHINGTON SMITH.

Discourses About the Good People of Hawaii. With Lumps.

The subscriptions taken for the relief of the natives in distress, and the philanthropic manner in which our wealthy men and the merchants of these islands contributed is without parallel. They came forward nobly and God will bless them for so doing. The Board of Health will get their reward for the work they are doing to down the dread scourge. The government in all its branches is doing its utmost to resist the cholera. The doctors, God bless them, have our heartfelt thanks for the good they are doing. The inspectors in every district are doing their utmost to keep the city in good sanitary condition, and the guards have our sympathy for what they are doing, also the Marshal and the police. We know they are doing all they can to help in the good work, and Chief Hunt and his men of the Fire Department deserve great praise in doing what they can to help in the cause which is for life or death. God grant that we can get the best of it before any more lives are lost, and we sympathize most deeply with those who have been unfortunate in losing a father, mother, brother, sister or friend during this epidemic.

We felt awfully sorry when we heard of the case this forenoon, 27th inst. We all expected to get out of here by the first of next week, and to hear the remarks when we were told, "Boys, another 18 days." One says, "My toes are coming through the front of my socks," and another: "I did not bring only enough for a week. I don't want to have my clothes go through that fumigator. I can smell sulphur yet." Another: "You are making a great fuss about nothing. I have my trunk full of clothes. I can stand a siege for two months." Another: "I would not care if my mattress was not full of knots. Why, I turned it over six times and found all the soft spots in it, and they are d—d few." Another: "I can't stand this much longer. I'm getting all I want of it, you bet. I don't want much more." Another says: "Charley, how's your shoes? My feet are on the dock now. I've commenced to grow the other way."

28th—"Well, old boy, how is the mattress? Find any more lumps?" "No, all the same. I did a little rasting with them before I got comfortable." "Well, old boy, if that was my bed, you bet I would have a funeral with it; or does your boss know how uncomfortable you are?" "No, he doesn't know anything about it." "I suppose if he did you would get a new one." "Yes, I know they would like to have me as comfortable as I can be, but I was told I would have to look out for myself and do the best I could, and I am doing it with a vengeance. I would like to have a lone funeral with it, and have the Government band in attendance you bet."

Valuable Postage Stamps.

Probably the most valuable collection of postage stamps in the world is owned by James W. Paul, Jr., a member of the great banking firm of Drexel & Co. of Philadelphia. Previous to sailing for Europe last week Mr. Paul had his collection insured for $30,000. It is known to philatelists all over the globe as "the great Paul collection," and contains thousands of stamps, some from every country in the world. The American group is remarkable for its completeness. Many of them have an immediate market worth of from $200 to $500 each. His snuff-colored Brattleboro 5-cent stamp, issued in 1846, is valued at $500, and he has ten other stamps issued in the same year, bearing the head of James Buchanan, that command from $250 to $350 each. For one stamp in the collection Mr. Paul has refused $1,500.
